J. R. ANDERSON'S HOUSE IN MONTCLAIR ROBBED-

A CERTIFIED CHECK, VALUABLE PAPERS AND COMMUTATION TICKET RETURNED

WITH A POLITE NOTE SIGNED

"YOUR BURGLAR." Montclair, Feb. 1.-Few burglars show such consideration for their victims as one who visited the ise of J. R. Anderson, in Mountain-ave., in this last night. Mr. Anderson lives with his family in a cottage of Colonial design, surrounded by a large yard with pretty lawns. He is a man of considerable wealth, and much of it has been ex-pended to beautify his home. He is connected with The Dry Goods Chronicle" in New-York City, and is one of its financia, backers. The house is somewhat isolated from the town proper, and is surrounded by a piazza. The burgiars removed the putty from one of the panes of glass between the plazza and the library, and then removed the glass itself. They then sawed away the partition between the glasses and entered the house. They went through all of the private papers in a small desk in one corner of the room and took what they believed would be of value to them, including about $30 in money. They entered a closet adjoin ing the library and confiscated a loaded gun and five overcoats belonging to Mr. Anderson and his this room. They overlooked silverware valued at several thousand dollars, which was in plain view on the sideboard in the dining-room, adjoining the library, and they did not go upstairs.

The sons of Mr. Anderson have a large Newfoundland dog, which is kept in the cellar at night, but the work of the thieves was done so quietly that not a sound was heard from the dog. The entir family slept while the burglars were at work, and the first intimation they had that the house had been entered by thieves was when Mr. Anderson went into the library this morning to get his overcoat. On making the discovery that the coat was gone the first thing that he remembered was that in the pocket was a certified check for a large sum of money, some valuable papers and a commutation ticket from Montclair to New-York and return for the month of February. It had never been punched. It was found that the gun which had been taken was lying on the grass at the side of the house, where it had been dropped by the thieves.

On arriving at his office, at No. 54 Franklin-st., New-York, at 9 o'clock this morning, Mr. Anderson icund in his mail a peculiar letter. It was bulky and had on it two two-cent stamps and a special delivery stamp. What attracted his attention more than anything e se was the fact that his name and address had been printed on the brown envelope. It had been mailed early this morning in Jersey City. On tearing open the envelope he was surprised to find his missing commutation ticket, the certified check and several other papers which had been stolen from the house last night. Accompanying the articles was the following note, which had been printed in lead pencil:

"As these cannot be turned into cash I return them, so as to save you unnecessary expense and trouble.

"YOUR BURGLAR." It was found that the gun which had been taket

He is employed by a New-York insurance company and received his pay for two weeks, amounting to $15.50. He purchased 50 cents' worth of ferry tickets, and for some reason which he did not explain he put $8 in one pocket and $7 in the other. The night school which he had attended held its closing exercises on Friday night, and as he was late he did not go home to supper, but went directly to the school. After the exercises he did not go home immediately, but took a walk, and was struck down while passing the school by a footpad who was hiding in the shadow of the fence.

HIS BOOKKEEPER AN EX-CONVICT.

Yards, in Jersey City, instructed his bookkeeper, Herbert Madigan, to pay the employes on January 18, and gave him $113. Madigan fled with the money Mr. Sherman recalled the fact that an attempt had been made three weeks prior to force open the money was the offender, as the attempt was made on a day when an unusually large sum of money was in the drawer. He informed the police and they arrested Madigan yesterday at his brother's home, No. 233% Ninth-st., Jersey City. Detective Clark, who made the arrest, was astonished to find that Madigan was an old offender, whose photograph was in the Rogues Gullery. Madigan had been frequently arrested in his youth and had not reached maturity when he was sent to State Prison in 1889 to serve a term of five years for breaking into an office and robbing a safe. Mr. Sherman was surprised when informed that his former bookkeeper was an exconvict.
